

Michael Jamieson
Elected Trustee

Michael gained a BCom and MBA from the University of Otago before working overseas for over a decade. Among other leadership responsibilities, Michael led Sustainability for Nike across the Asia Pacific during his 11 years at Nike Inc, before coming back to run Nike NZ and introducing sneaker sole recycling, and then as the leader for Icebreaker's sustainability work for more than 5 years in his role as Global GM, this included guardianship of the widely publicized baa-code traceability supply chain initiative.

Michael then joined the Public service with the Ministry for Primary Industries, for 3 years he learnt his way around Government as Director of Strategy, Science and Systems and acting Director of the Primary Growth Partnership, then a project role in Maori Manuka economic development at Mbie.

Michael is currently CEO and Shareholder in Henergy in the Wairarapa, New Zealand's first and largest cage-free egg farm business with a strong focus on animal welfare and the environment. He also is engaged in voluntary capacities as an industry member of the National Animal Welfare Advisory Committee for the Poultry Code review and for the Wairarapa food story governance group. Michael is pleased to be able to offer both a global business and a government perspective to his role of New Zealand Farm Environment Trustee.
