

Kate Taylor

With a communications background and a firm belief in the Trust's work, Kate Taylor brings a wealth of knowledge, experience and enthusiasm to the Board.

A former farmer, Kate is a passionate supporter of rural New Zealand, fitting perfectly with the Trust's mission to champion Aotearoa's best farmers and growers.

In 2020, Kate stepped down from the East Coast BFEA regional committee after 10 years of service. Her governance journey has included positions within sporting and community organisations, and Young Farmers. She's a Kellogg Rural Scholar, former Consumers Power Trust elected trustee and current district councillor.

Professionally, Kate is a rural journalist who has a deep rural network spanning both the North and South islands.
